

ABSTRACT

An area to be subjected to the image correction process such as an area of a human image in an image containing the human image is automatically specified, and an image correction process such as the gradation process is executed only for the specified area.